MAKING "ANTIQUES" TO ORDER

Famous Old Pottery of England cleverly imitated in factories on the Continent.

And still the manufacture of antiques goes merrily on. An English authority declares that there is not a variety of famous old English pottery that is not imitated on a large scale for the English market. Continental factories are the sinners mostly. A firm in Hungary sends out such excellent copies that many a collector is deceived. This firm, it is said, has imitated nearly all the important ceramics of Europe and the east. Another, a French firm, has simply flooded the market with clever imitations of Worcester, Derby and the rest. The beginner who pins his faith to the mark is making a mistake. The gold anchor is always found on spurious Chelsea; only experts know that no gold anchor at all is found on the earliest and finest Chelsea. A case in the courts brought out lately a trick the German imitators had for hiding these spurious marks from the custom house officials. They simply paste a label with the familiar "Made in Germany" printed on it over the mark. The "old china" case tried in London not long ago revealed the extent of this imitation business, but it is doubtful whether people will not go on being deceived just the same.

HOW TO DETECT THE SAILOR.

Seafaring Man Always Walks with Palms of His Hands Turned Backward.

A visitor who prides himself on his knowledge of nautical affairs was chatting with a friend outside the Flatiron building. "See that man coming?" he asked. "Can you tell what he is by the way he walks?"

"Why, no," replied the New Yorker who was with him.

"He's a sailorman of some sort. Look at his hands. No landsman ever walked that way. A sailor always walks with the palms of his hands turned behind him and the backs turned forward, the way he is walking. Look at that landsman over there. He swings his arms with the palms of the hands turned toward his body and the backs out. You can always detect the man who is accustomed to the sea that way."

"What's the explanation?" inquired the other.

"Why, there isn't any that I know. It may be because the sailor gets the habit of balancing himself in rough weather by the use of his arms, but I don't believe that's the reason. It's just one of those things you can't account for."

Overcoming Physical Handicaps.

A bundle of tangled nerves cannot respond to the music of the Aeolian harp of right living. Many great men were handicapped in life by delicate bodies, but they called will and determination to their assistance and triumphed over corporal weakness. Paul was a hunchback, yet became the greatest of preachers. Julius Caesar never planned a battle without an attack of epilepsy. Pascal was an invalid from early manhood. Alexander Pope was a dwarf and the butt of ridicule. Milton was blind, but saw more with the eye of intellect than any other man. Parkman, our greatest historian, suffered all his life, and could not use his eyes for more than five consecutive minutes. Beethoven drew forth matchless and immortal harmonies, but his dull ears could not absorb the ecstatic sounds. These men, however, fought so well against natural drawbacks that they became victors.

Woman's Earning Power.

It has been computed that women to-day in the United States are earning over twice what they did three years ago. Women have invaded at least 90 per cent. of the employments. Indeed, it is almost impossible to find any kind of employment in which they are not engaged. While it is true that they have not yet become telegraph linemen, it is equally true that in other branches of the same line, they are indispensable. There are almost as many women telegraph operators as men, and everybody knows that "Central" wouldn't be the same without girls. Almost every woman in the United States has the ability to earn her own living in one way or another and many of them are doing it. The old days when the wash tub was the only recourse of the indigent female is past.

Breaking Things.

A certain well-known member of congress has a house down in Washington. One of the fixtures of the place is an old negro servant named Sally Ann. In the congressman's presence one Sunday morning she broke a big cut glass dish at the sideboard. "What have you broken now, you black muddingsters?" yelled the member, who possesses a very expressive vocabulary.

Sally Ann was quite unnerved, but she replied, very humbly: "Tain't de Fo'th Commandment, bress de Lawd!"

Early Instances.

"The old poets knew about the automobile." "How now?" "Macaulay speaks of Lars Porsera and his ivory car." "Well?" "And Poe cites an instance of the air growing denser. Evidently an auto had just passed."
